NHL in 'Peg is feasible: Report

10 Canadian cities examined based on size, wealth and geographic location

We have the fans. They have the cash. The sport is a religion. So Canada can definitely support at least another six NHL teams — including one in Winnipeg — according to a new study that challenges the league's America-first mentality.

"Instead of taking the supply of hockey where the demand isn't," it asks, "should the NHL go where the demand is?"

Attempts to promote hockey in southern U.S. markets have been largely unsuccessful, argues the report from the Mowat Centre for Policy Innovation at the University of Toronto. Instead, the NHL should focus on bolstering the game in Canada where demand is greatest.

Canada's six teams account for nearly one-third of league revenue. Most of those loonies end up in the U.S., which has 24 teams, through revenue sharing.

Shoot for the stars, says space adventurer

Students at Chief Peguis Junior High had an out-of-this-world guest lecturer yesterday, as Canadian Space Agency astronaut Chris Hadfield spoke to them about life in space and on the ground on planet Earth.

Hadfield, who will be the first Canadian astronaut to command the International Space Station in March of 2013, encouraged students to set goals and make plans early in life.

Teachers at Chief Peguis said having Hadfield address their students was an inspiring experience.

"Don't let the randomness of the world kick you into being an adult that you don't want to be ... Choose what you want to do and start getting yourself ready." CHRIS HADFIELD

"It sends out the message that you can make your dreams a reality," said Grade 9 science teacher Kathleen Murphy.

Chief Peguis Junior High School was the only school Hadfield spoke at in Manitoba on his four-day tour, which began in Toronto.

Siloam Mission expands to Madison

Ten staff will work at the Memorial Lodge Renos to cost about $1.5M

MORGAN MODJESKI
WINNIPEG@METRONEWS.CA

Winnipeg's most prominent Christian mission is expanding to the Madison Memorial Lodge at 210 Evanson St.

Siloam Mission purchased the Madison after a year of negotiations with the Madison Lodge Organization for a total of $300,000. It will provide transitory housing for the homeless.

"What we're trying to achieve is good, clean, safe and dry housing for people who are in recovery, either from addictions or mental illness," said Floyd Perras, executive director of the Siloam Mission. "There is an acute housing crisis in the city and this project is our first phase in tackling that problem."

"We want the Madison to become a place that people are proud to live in." FLOYD PERRAS

Surrounding residents seem to agree.

"I have no problem with the residents who live in that building and for the most part, they're good people, they just need some help," said Laurene Myrvold, a resident on Evanson Street.

"I think its good," said Monica Bock, another neighbourhood resident. "We need more housing for low-income and homeless people."

EXOTIC SURPRISE

One snake leads to a suite of reptiles

Instead of a snake in the grass, it was a snake under the sink.

A 75-year-old man got a slithery surprise Saturday after he discovered a six-foot snake under his bathroom sink in his Assiniboine Avenue apartment. The man called police, who notified the city's animal services department, who in turn captured the creature.

Police said they then investigated the rest of the building and discovered a suite with more than 50 snakes and other reptiles being hoarded by a 33-year-old man.

Nine snakes believed to be illegal have since been seized and the man is facing charges under the City of Winnipeg Exotic Animal bylaw.

A spokesperson for the City of Winnipeg Animal Services department said the majority of snakes or reptiles seized are given to reptile zoos or shelters. Police said there was nothing to indicate the snakes or reptiles, which included a snapping turtle, were being mistreated.

Under Winnipeg's Exotic Animal bylaw, there is no set number for how many reptiles one person may own, however, venomous reptiles or snakes are illegal in Winnipeg.

Man stabbed for bike

A man who put up a fight for his bike was stabbed for his efforts.

Winnipeg police said a 21-year-old man was riding his bike near Austin Street and Euclid Avenue Sunday evening when two teens, also on bikes, approached him and demanded his bicycle.

When the man refused and sped away, the two males chased him to Main Street, where one of the teens produced a knife and stabbed the man several times in the upper body.

The man flagged down help and was taken to hospital in unstable condition. He was upgraded to stable, then released.

Police are looking for two teens, one described as aboriginal in appearance, 16 years old, five-foot-six, slim, short dark hair and clean shaven. The other suspect is only described as a male in his teens.

Smokers to pay for budget boost

DAVID LIPNOWSKI/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Finance Minister Rosann Wowchuk delivers the annual budget at the Manitoba legislative assembly yesterday.

◗ Province bumps overall spending by two per cent ◗ Tuition fees capped ◗ More child care funded

The provincial government is loosening the purse strings in a pre-election budget.

But it is also increasing tobacco taxes to help with a two per cent increase in overall spending. Smokers can expect to pay 50 cents more for a pack of 25 cigarettes.

The 2011-12 financial blueprint forecasts a $438-million shortfall on a $14-billion budget. The province is borrowing $49 million from its rainy-day fund to partially offset the deficit.

Tuition fee increases are to be capped at the rate of inflation, but universities are to get a five per cent increase in their operating budgets.

Municipalities will also get $5 million more for infrastructure and transit, with a promise they will get the equivalent of one per cent of the provincial sales tax.

The province is also committing to battle a critical shortage in child care by spending $4.7 million to add 2,100 spaces.

Manitoba's basic personal exemption is also slowly increasing, starting with $250 this year.

Budget reaction

- Sam Katz, Winnipeg Mayor: Katz said city council was "extremely disappointed" in the budget's one per cent PST dedicated funding to infrastructure, pointing out the new funding model does not increase the amount of dollars poured into Winnipeg's $1.3-billion infrastructure deficit.
- Colin Craig, Canadian Taxpayers Federation, Prairies branch: "High spending again this year means we'll once again have high taxes and higher government debt."
- Dave Angus, president and CEO, Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce: "There wasn't much of a tax break for business ... corporate tax remained the same, payroll tax remained the same, there were a few things on the personal side ... but again it was not to any significant degree."
- David Bernard, president of University of Manitoba: "This three-year financial commitment ensures the University of Manitoba is able to continue to provide top quality education to its students."
- Mark McDonald, Canadian Cancer Society MB Chapter: "The provincial government will collect $253.4 million this year in tobacco taxes and yet it continues to provide less than one per cent to programs to reduce consumption of tobacco products in Manitoba."

Greens refuse to be muzzled

JESSICA SMITH

Young Green party supporters stood with duct tape across their mouths in the crowd of shouting Conservative, Liberal and NDP partisans on Rideau Street before the federal leaders' televised debate yesterday.

The tape signified Green party Leader Elizabeth May's exclusion from the debate, but they took it off to explain that to passing reporters and shout jeers and cheers of their own.

"They spend their tax dollars like they use gas — they're wasting it," shouted youth vote co-ordinator Jonathan Halasz as two Conservative party buses drove by honking.

Harper asks for majority ◐ Rivals attack him on accountability, spending practices, economic policy

Election 2011

Prime Minister Stephen Harper played defence against a three-man rush from his political rivals and their charges of deception, dubious spending practices and secretive, conspiratorial government.

His only offensive: Give the Conservatives a majority or "we're going to be back into a fifth election in no time at all," Harper said during yesterday's debate.

The rest of the time, Harper was under attack.

Bloc Québécois Leader Gilles Duceppe urged Harper to explain a draft report from the auditor general that calls into question Conservative spending practices.

Harper's principal rivals, Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff and the NDP's Jack Layton, jumped into the fray.

"The Conservative party is the problem here when it comes to the economy," Layton said. He cited "right-wing" policies of deregulation and corporate tax cuts as reasons "why people can't make ends meet, why so many people are still out of work."

Ignatieff accused Harper of failing Canadians by pushing corporate tax cuts, which the Liberals would cancel in order to pay for a student grants program.

"That's a billion-dollar investment ... you spent that in 72 hours on the G8/G20 photo-op."

Liberal shipbuilding plan angers N.S. premier

Nova Scotia Premier Darrell Dexter says he will write to Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff to express his disappointment over the federal party's position on a massive national shipbuilding program.

Media reports say party officials in Quebec have promised that a Liberal government would push back a deadline requiring the Davie Shipyard to demonstrate solvency, one of the conditions for bid submissions under Ottawa's shipbuilding strategy.

The Quebec yard is in competition with three other shipyards including the Irving-owned facility in Halifax to build combat and non-combat vessels under the $35-billion plan.

Dexter said Nova Scotia wants the procurement process to proceed free of political interference.

"I would hope the considered opinion of Mr. Ignatieff would be to support the fair and open procurement process that is currently underway," Dexter said yesterday. "And I hope that in considering his opinion he would understand the value of the existing rules."

Dexter said the Liberal party's promise to move the deadline to July 7 from May 18 was "unacceptable."

Provincial Liberal Leader Stephen MacNeil said the premier was playing politics and it's his understanding that all deadlines have been pushed back to July 7 because of the federal election. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ex-prostitute, fraudster partied at 24 Sussex

Disgraced former Stephen Harper aide Bruce Carson brought a reported ex-prostitute and money-launderer to 24 Sussex Drive to meet with the prime minister and his wife during a party at the official residence, the Conservatives have confirmed.

Barbara Lynn Khan and her then-beau Carson, who has been convicted on five counts of fraud, were among the guests at a going-away bash three years ago for the prime minister's departing chief of staff, Ian Brodie, a party spokesman said late yesterday.

"I can confirm that (Khan) was at Mr. Brodie's farewell party at 24 Sussex as Mr. Carson's guest," Conservative campaign spokesman Alykhan Velshi said in an email.

"It was a farewell party for a friend and colleague, not a government event."

The Globe and Mail reported that Khan was convicted in the United States in 2003 for maintaining a bawdy house, as well as aiding and abetting prostitution.

The newspaper, citing public records, reported Khan was convicted a year later of the more serious U.S. federal offence of money laundering.

She was subsequently deported to her native Canada. THE CANADIAN PRESS

MURDER TRIAL

Edmonton filmmaker found guilty of murder

An aspiring Edmonton filmmaker has been convicted of murdering and dismembering a stranger in a plot that matched a movie script.

Mark Twitchell admitted he accidentally killed Johnny Altinger in October 2008 in a publicity hoax gone wrong.

But the jury opted to convict Twitchell on the original charge of first-degree murder.

The Crown argued Twitchell lured Altinger to a rented garage, killed him, cut him up and dumped the remains down a sewer.

The death matched a murder in a slasher movie Twitchell had filmed, which he wrote about on his laptop.

Twitchell testified he got Altinger to come to the garage by pretending to be a date the man had met on the Internet.

Cheap flights could take wing with new airline

Air Canada discount carrier would aim at Transat, Sunwing, WestJet and could push fares down

Air Canada's reported plans to launch a discount carrier could dish up competitive headaches for its rivals and lower airfares to vacation spots in Mexico, the Caribbean and Europe, industry analysts say.

Chris Murray of PI Financial Corp. says a new airline would ramp up pressure on the industry to reduce fares, at least until a rival is driven out of business.

"In the short run there may be some bargains, though I wouldn't expect ... the craziness we've seen before, the $1 to London flights," he says.

Air Canada is reportedly drawing up a plan to deploy four Boeing 767s and six Airbus A319s, with the fleet increasing to 50 planes. The delivery of 37 Boeing 787 Dreamliners would allow the airline to transfer older planes to the new airline.

Air Canada would not comment on the rumours.

But Pierre Tessier, spokesman for Transat AT, said consumers will benefit if the new carrier adds more seats to the market. "There's always been a lot of competition in the market and we're used to that," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

No rate hike for now: Central bank

The Bank of Canada will keep the policy rate at one per cent for at least another seven weeks. Nearly half of Canadians say steeper fuel and food prices are taking a significant bite out of their budgets, an RBC Consumer Outlook suggests.

While 45 per cent say rising prices are having a significant impact, the effects are felt most strongly by residents of Ontario, Atlantic Canada and Quebec.

Managing debt remains a high priority, with 39 per cent of Canadians planning to pay off as much debt as possible.

Thirty per cent say they are focused on spending less, 23 per cent are looking to save or invest more and 25 per cent say they intend to do all three.

Overall, the report says Canadians' concerns about the economy are relatively unchanged since the last survey three months earlier.

Cost of homes to stabilize

Home prices across the country will stabilize or only creep higher this year amid "tepid" improvements in employment, says a report by Royal LePage.

Phil Soper, chief executive of Royal LePage Real Estate Services, says that in most markets, single-digit percentage increases are likely for the balance of the year.

"While low interest rates continue to drive demand, the tepid pace at which employment levels are improving is tempering the rate of home-price appreciation in many Canadian cities," Soper says.

DON'T MESS WITH MAMA

Bolivia may be one of the poorest places on Earth, but it's rich in at least one commodity: Legislation.

It's about to pass the Mother of All Laws giving Mother Nature equal rights to human beings. In Bolivia, Ms. Nature goes by Pachamama, an Andean deity that is at the centre of all life. As soon as the law is passed — and pass it will because the ruling party has what Stephen Harper most desires: A majority in both houses of Parliament — Pachamama will gain 11 shiny new rights.

Most of them are pretty basic: The right to life and to exist; the right to continue all her various cycles, from carbon to Krebs, without human interference; the right to pure water and clean air; the right not to be polluted; the right to balance; and the right not to be genetically altered.

Then there's this: Pachamama will enjoy the right "not to be affected by mega-infrastructure and development projects that affect the balance of ecosystems and the local inhabitant communities."

The guys who run the resource companies are howling with boyish laughter. You see, Bolivia has its own brown skeletons in its own sooty closet. More than one-third of its foreign currency comes from the mining of tin, silver, gold, etc., and you can bet Pachamama is feeling more than a little violated on that front.

When you're the world's 100th ranked economy, below Trinidad and Tobago and Turkmenistan, for goodness sake, it's tough to resist the temptation of all that glitters. Without precious metals, Bolivia's largest export is ... soybeans and natural gas, a potent combination for sure.

Ecuador has already tried something like this, but that hasn't stopped anyone from plundering the Amazon. You have to wonder why they even bother — they're just going to end up making themselves depressed as they continue to pollute and genetically modify until one day Pachamama decides to take the law into her own hands.

That may be what's motivating Bolivia: It's not nice to fool Pachamama and she is already showing signs of losing her legendary maternal patience: Bolivian scientists predict temperatures will rise up to 4 C over the next 100 years, all the glaciers will melt and Bolivia will become a desert.

So rather than risk the loss of her affections altogether, all they can do is promise to try to nurture nature. And if they break their promise, she can always complain to the newly established Ministry of Mother Earth.

Good luck with that.

LONDON. Is there a science of happiness?

A growing band of economists, politicians and academics thinks so — and is putting theory into practice by starting a "mass movement for a happier society."

Action for Happiness launched yesterday in London, encouraging hugging, meditation and random acts of kindness. It is getting underway as the British government asks statisticians to measure the economically battered nation's well-being.

The non-profit group's founders include a former Downing Street policy chief, Tony Blair's biographer and an eminent economist. They say happiness is a deeply serious issue.

Co-founder Richard Layard, emeritus professor of economics at the London School of Economics, says the group "doesn't have any creed or dogma. It's a secular movement, grounded in science."

Increasing numbers of politicians are taking up that mantra. Prime Minister David Cameron has said "it's time we focused not just on GDP but on GWB — general well-being." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Would Peter pick a peck of pickled penises?

In life, Pall Arason sought attention. In death, he is getting it: The 95-year-old Icelander's pickled penis will be the main attraction in one of his country's most bizarre museums.

Sigurdur Hjartarson, who runs the Phallological Museum in the tiny Icelandic fishing town of Husavik, said Arason's organ will help round out the unusual institution's extensive collection of phalluses from whales, seals, bears and other mammals.

Several people had pledged their penises over the years — including an American, a Briton, and a German — but Arason's was the first to be successfully donated, Hjartarson said.

Hjartarson's museum started in Reykjavik but has since moved to Husavik.

The Phallological Museum is an important part of the region's tourist industry, bringing in thousands of visitors every summer.

Highlights of the museum's collection include a 170-centimetre sperm whale penis preserved in formaldehyde, lampshades made from bull testicles, and what the museum described as an "unusually big" penis bone from a Canadian walrus. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Neve Campbell talks about making Scream 4, and the newcomers to the horror franchise

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Despite how successful the Scream franchise has been for her, Neve Campbell hasn't become an old pro at watching horror movies.

"I usually cover my eyes and scream and cry during horror films," she admits.

But just because her eyes are covered doesn't mean she isn't enjoying herself. "These films are a roller coaster ride," she says of the Scream films. "I think they're great fun to watch."

They're just as much fun to make, she insists, and filming Scream 4 last summer was no different.

"We were having fun during the filming," she says of re-teaming with David Arquette, Courteney Cox and director Wes Craven.

"We would often just go and have dinner and a nice glass of wine and have some laughs, so even during it you're not feeling like it's this really intense experience or dark experience, because there's a lot of humor in these films as well. You can't take them incredibly seriously. Part of the fun of these is that they're so self-referential and make fun of themselves."

"You can't take them incredibly seriously. Part of the fun of these is that they're so self-referential and make fun of themselves."
NEVE CAMPBELL ON THE SCREAM FRANCHISE

Although it's been 15 years since Scream — and 11 years since Scream 3 — it didn't take Campbell long to get back in the Woodsboro groove.

"It's been 15 years now we've been doing these characters, so not difficult to jump into," she says. "I had fun watching the films again before we started this, just to get a sense of it, and it was really nice to see that they still hold up really well. But no, it wasn't difficult to get into the characters. With Sidney, it's just imagining her circumstances in doing it."

And while working with Cox and Arquette again was a treat, Campbell was particularly impressed with her younger co-stars, including franchise newcomers Hayden Panettiere and Emma Roberts.

"Courteney and I looked at each other and were like, 'We could be their mothers,'" Campbell says with a laugh.

"But they were good. They came with so much enthusiasm to the project. People keep asking whether we had to show them the ropes, and they're professionals in their own rights. They've had long careers already at young ages, and they came in and they did a great job."

Spotlight sympathy

Emma Watson feels for royal bride-to-be Middleton

Emma Watson has a lot of sympathy for Kate Middleton.

The royal bride-to-be is under a worldwide spotlight ahead of her April 29 wedding to Prince William — with special focus on fashion, what she'll wear for her big day. Only two billion people may be watching, according to one British minister.

"Poor girl, that must be an incredible amount of pressure," Watson told The Associated Press in an interview earlier this month. "I hope she's enjoying it. Must be intense."

Watson herself knows something about life in the spotlight. Over the last eleven years she's grown up on screen and in public from a child actress to a film star. These days who she's dating is big entertainment news, what she's wearing is dissected by fashionistas around the globe, which products she is endorsing fuels business stories. A simple trip to the hairdresser to cut her long golden brown hair into an elfin crop made international headlines.

Renowned dancer and choreographer Dave St-Pierre is always on the go, but he loves his home city ◆ The dance pioneer guides us through his favourite parts of Montreal

A dancer's Montreal

Every time I come back to Montreal after a few months outside of the country, I say: "OK, I'm home." Actually, Montreal is like a landmark for me. Maybe more than a home, 'cause I could live anywhere. But it feels good to be back here. Every time. Montreal is comforting.

Montreal is like a family. People are open-minded, it's not strange to see two men or two women walking hand-in-hand. Montrealers are friendly. That's probably why tourists miss the city so much when they're back home. Yes they missed the city — because there is a lot of things to do here — but they mostly miss the Montrealers. They miss our energy.

We're also very emotive. We're intense in everything we do. Maybe it's because we have such extremes in our weather — from very cold in the winter to very hot in the summer.

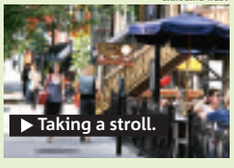
DAVID ST-PIERRE

CANADIAN TOURISM COMMISSION

▶ Cheesy but fun, a horse-drawn 'caleche' tour of the city

First time?

CAROLINE WEST



▶ Taking a stroll.

A walk in Old Montreal is a must. Try it by day and by night. The Basilique Notre-Dame, the Marché Bonsecours, the old Silos, the Old Port, you have to see it all. Walk in the narrowest alleys to discover this part of the city that is from another time. Le Pointe à Callière Museum (pacmusee.qc.ca) — about Montreal's history — is very interesting too. It may sound a bit cheesy, but step back in time and try a calèche tour. The guides will have great, unique stories for you about the city.

▶ Bily Kun

Stay in

Come to my loft! It's nice and cosy. But there won't be enough room for everyone. But seriously, I would choose a warm bed and breakfast over an impersonal hotel.

Go out

I would suggest an Open Mic evening at a bar like HELM on Bernard Street in the very hipster Mile-End neighbourhood. There are a lot of cool bars on Mont-Royal Avenue too like Bily Kun, Verre Bouteille or Plan B.

▶ Monastiraki

Shopping!

Go to Boulevard Saint-Laurent, nicknamed the "Main." You'll find a lot of great places from chic boutiques to cool antique shops. My favourite place is Monastiraki (monastiraki.blogspot.com), a small gallery and shop with odd objects, vintage posters and books from contemporary cartoonists.

Been there before?

Take a look at the Belgo building (372 Rue Sainte-Catherine Ouest), where you'll find a lot of art galleries, fashion designers, artists and architects studios and the well-known school dance LADMMI. It's the perfect place to see what's happening in Montreal's art scene and to discover new artists.

Another great place is the Modern Art Museum (macm.org). It's not the Guggenheim, but it's always interesting to spend the afternoon there. Don't be afraid to go in the art galleries too.

Yves Laroche (yveslaroche.com) on Saint-Laurent is a very good one.

If you want to see a dance show, head to the La Chapelle Theater (lachapelle.org). They are offering astounding things right now. They aren't scared to go off the beaten track.

A fresh treat for kids? Yes, it's possible

After months of holiday-related treats, these lemon squares are refreshing Kids can help to make them

Sometimes, it feels like health-conscious parents can't catch a break.

Just when you've managed to get past the Halloween treats (and the accompanying sugar highs), Christmas candy canes show up.

And when you're done with those, Valentine's chocolates start appearing in stores .

Then they make way for eggs, chocolate bunnies and cream-filled chicks.

I'm looking forward to a few months without a treat-oriented holiday.

Meanwhile, I'm selling my kids on the idea of spring-themed treats as a replacement for excess chocolate eggs.

These lemon squares might help me convince them.

If you can find Meyer lemons, they really are worth the extra expense.

Not as sour as regular citrus, they're vibrant tasting and very easy to juice and zest. But any lemon will do.

Addition of the wheat-germ to the crust gives it a nutty flavour, which is a nice foil for the lemony-ness of the squares.

This is a recipe with lots of opportunities for kids to get involved in the baking process.

They can press the crust into the pan, crack eggs, grate the frozen butter.

And, of course, they can what they do best: scarf-back the resulting treats.

MAYA VISNYEI

▶ This recipe makes 16 lemon squares.

Preparation:

1. In a bowl, combine flour, wheat germ, icing sugar and salt. Grate the sticks of frozen butter with a cheese grater into the flour mixture. Toss the frozen butter curls into the flour mixture until you have a mealy texture. Press the loose dough into 13 x 9 inch (3 L) baking dish and use your hands to flatten it. Refrigerate for 15 minutes.

2. Bake crust in 350 F (180 C) oven for 15 to 18 minutes or until just beginning to turn golden.

3. Filling: In bowl, whisk together sugar, flour, salt, lemon rind and juice, eggs and egg yolk. Whisk until well blended. Gently pour filling mixture onto the hot crust. Bake for 18 to 20 minutes or until the filling has just set.

4. Allow to cool completely before slicing into squares. Dip your knife in warm water before each cut to ensure clean cuts.

Students everywhere are going for the green

Young people applying for enviro-programs in droves as jobs increase

Canadian students are flocking to environment-related programs as experts predict a boost in green sector jobs.

The latest figures show enrolment in university programs, such as land-use planning and conservation biology, have risen dramatically in recent years.

Environment-related college programs have also seen a slight increase in enrolment.

Meanwhile, experts say the country's burgeoning green economy holds many opportunities for graduates willing to step off the beaten path.

While it still represents fewer jobs overall than other fields, the green sector "is an emerging part of the economy that's growing at a faster rate than the traditional pieces," said job expert Alan Kearns, founder of CareerJoy.

Graduates who can market themselves in that economy are likely to be in demand, whether they end up working in a green start-up or co-ordinating a more traditional company's sustainability efforts, he said.

Students are showing a "huge interest" in green jobs, said Laurie Simmonds, president of Green Living, the marketing firm behind the Green Living Show in Toronto.

That's why this year's show will include a green jobs forum on April 16, to help job seekers connect with green sector employers, she said.

Roughly two thirds of green companies expect to hire full-time employees in the next five years, according to a survey performed by ECO Canada last year.

Tom Rand, a clean technology expert who will headline the green jobs forum, said most opportunities available right now involve installing green technologies such as solar panels rather than developing new ones.

At the same time, there's always room for innovation and entrepreneurship, said Andrew Heintzman, chairman of Ontario's climate change advisory panel.

"It's never too early to start thinking about good ideas," he said.

According to a report released by ECO Canada, a non-profit organization focused on the environment industry:

- The number of students enrolled in environment-related university programs went up roughly 40 per cent between 2000 and 2007.
- In Ontario, however, there's been a boom in green-economy college programs, with 35 new diploma or certificate programs introduced in the past three years, including 14 last fall alone.

The workplace no longer has traditional borders. Employees correspond through instant messages, through Facebook and via e-mail. Seldom do they do so exclusively for business purposes. Others, who are bored, unmotivated or underworked, surf the internet for much of their workdays, managing their sports pools, blogging about coworkers, reading the news or dating on-line. Employers have good reason for concern. Lost productivity and potential liability for the actions of their employees have caused most organizations to revisit their computer use policies - or create new ones altogether. Here are some common issues.

- Employees spending an inordinate amount of time at work accessing the web for personal use can be tantamount to theft of an employer's time, which can be cause for dismissal, with appropriate warnings.

- Internet use that can be considered harassing or discriminatory will be often be grounds for dismissal. In one case, two employees were fired after distributing a vulgar e-mail at work detailing the sexual gymnastics of an overweight female co-worker. In another case a New Brunswick judge upheld the dismissal of an employee finding that his conduct amounted to sexual harassment because the female IT manager who performed an audit on his computer found the websites he visited "offensive".

- Criminal laws can also be invoked if employees harass or intimidate coworkers or if they violate hate propaganda or obscenity laws. These employees can end up surfing the classifieds for a lawyer, as well as for a new job.

Feeling pre-test stress?

BRUCE WALSH
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

In the coming months, anxiety rates on college campuses will surely be on the rise as students prepare for final exams.

Dr. Blythe Grossberg, author of Test Success: Test-Taking and Study Strategies for All Students, has been a learning specialist for more than a decade. We asked her for some advice when dealing with exam stress.

Is anxiety and fear ever good when it comes to final exams?

Yes. There's been a lot of research in this area. Stress is somewhat of a bell curve — a little bit of it can make you motivated and function better. We all respond to motivation.

But there's a point where you become overwhelmed, and that's where you're on the downward side of the bell curve, and you'll find it more difficult to concentrate.

What are the most common mistakes in preparing for finals?

Students often use what I call passive study strategies. They're doing things like reading the textbook or just reading over their notes. They're not actively approaching the information.

You need to ask, "What are the major themes that tie this information together? How can I integrate the information into a narrative? What are the five major lessons my professor has been trying to drive home all semester?"

Triano focuses on task at hand

Amid the mounting losses and uncertainty about a future that is unclear, Jay Triano has summoned strength from his past.

The Toronto Raptors have just one game left in a season to forget before an off-season full of question marks. Neither Triano's job as head coach, Bryan Colangelo's position as president and GM, nor the immediate continuance of the league itself is a given right now.

But as the late Canadian coaching legend Jack Donohue used to tell Triano, the only thing within his control is today.

"Jack used to tell us, 'Yesterday is a cancelled cheque, and tomorrow is a promisory note, and today is cash in hand,'" Triano said. "So live each day and do the best that you can every single day."

Triano will wrap up his ninth season in Toronto and second as head coach, when the Raptors (22-59) host the Miami Heat (57-24) tonight.

The Raptors have an option for another year on Triano's contract that has to be picked up by June.

Triano and his staff have spoken briefly about the future, yet tried not to dwell on their murky futures.

But Triano, who's Canada's first NBA head coach, said uncertainty is a constant in sports for coaches and athletes.

Back in the swing?

Tiger says Canadian swing coach has been key to recent improvement

A new swing and some renewed enthusiasm brought back the old Tiger Woods at last week's Masters.

The former top-ranked golfer, who finished in a tie for fourth place Sunday at Augusta National, was already back at work yesterday, promoting the game of golf and his sponsors on a trip to China.

"I hit the ball really well on the weekend and made some shots — those are shots I know I can hit. That was fun and exciting," Woods said at the Mission Hills Dongguan clubhouse near the southern Chinese city of Shenzhen. "It's really starting to feel pretty good. This week was a pretty good week."

The 14-time major champion hasn't won a title since returning from a five-month break after revelations of marital infidelity last year. But at the Masters, Woods made a strong run with four birdies and an eagle on the front nine of the final round before faltering on the back.

"I played well and unfortunately just came up a little short on the back nine."
TIGER WOODS ON THE MASTERS

"When I was 25, I was on tour and having a pretty good run out there at the time, won a few tournaments right about that age," Woods said. "And at 35, I haven't won a thing."

He credits Canadian swing coach Sean Foley, who started working with Woods at last year's PGA Championship.

Despite being happy with the overhaul of his driving, Woods told fans that his putting was lacking and his next goal is to fine-tune his short game.

Oilers will pick first for second straight year

The Edmonton Oilers will pick first overall in the NHL draft again.

Edmonton won the draft lottery last night after finishing its season in 30th place and holding the highest odds of getting the No. 1 pick at 48.2 per cent.

Colorado (18.8 per cent), Florida (14.2 per cent), the New York Islanders (10.7 per cent) and Ottawa (8.1 per cent) were also in the running.

The NHL draft is scheduled for June 24-25 in St. Paul, Minn., where Ryan Nugent-Hopkins of the WHL's Red Deer Rebels is expected to be taken No. 1 overall.

Edmonton selected winger Taylor Hall with last year's first pick.

▶ Carey Price will have his chance to shine, or stumble, this spring.

Price takes centre stage

◐ Canadiens goalie will try to make Habs fans forget about Halak
◐ Heads into Game 1 facing Vezina Trophy favourite Tim Thomas

Much has changed for Carey Price since he was forced to watch from the bench last spring as unheralded goalie Jaroslav Halak led the Montreal Canadiens to the Eastern Conference final.

Halak was traded not long after that despite becoming the darling of the Bell Centre crowd.

But then Price asserted his billing as a goaltending prodigy with a breakthrough 2010-11 season, appearing in a career-high 72 games and finishing tied for the league lead with 38 victories.

Now it's playoff time, and it will be up to Price to hold the fort as he tries to make people forget about Halak's feat with his own string of upsets.

It starts in Boston, where the slick-skating Canadiens begin what should be a tight first-round series against the Bruins tomorrow night.

"I'll just keep on doing what I've been doing all season," Price said yesterday.

"It's not just me out there, there's other guys, too. I'm not going to put all that burden on myself."
CANADIENS GOALTENDER CAREY PRICE

The playoffs have not been kind to Price in recent years, but that was a younger, less disciplined version of the goaltender.

After he came out of junior hockey and led the Hamilton Bulldogs to an AHL championship in 2007, the 2005 fifth-overall draft pick won the starting job in Montreal. He posted two shutouts in a first-round victory over the Bruins in the 2008 post-season.

Price hasn't won in the playoffs since.

He takes an eight-game playoff winless run into the Boston series.

"Every year's a new year, so you never know what's going to happen," he said.

It may be a rough series for Price. The Bruins like to crowd the net and have the big men to do it, starting with rugged winger Milan Lucic, who had nine points in six games against Montreal this season.

Mostly, Price wants his chance to revel in the excitement of a playoff run.

"Playing at this time of the year in this city is special. Now everyone's got their flags out, Ste. Catherine Street is going to be pretty wild. Everyone's all wrapped up, but the guys in this locker-room have to stay calm and keep on doing what's made us successful. Not tighten up or get nervous." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pens enter Round 1 lacking

Mario Lemieux and Ron Francis. Jaromir Jagr. Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin.

Every Pittsburgh Penguins team that has reached the NHL playoffs since the 1980s has featured the NHL's best player, one of its top scorers, or both.

Except these playoffs.

The Lightning possess more offensive depth, more proven scorers and more stars than the Penguins, who begin the post-season without knowing if megastar Crosby will take another shift until October.

Crosby, out with a concussion, skated with teammates during practice yesterday but has not been cleared for contact. He is all but certain to miss the series.

"There's no change in Sidney Crosby's status," coach Dan Bylsma said yesterday.

Eastern Conference

Capitals vs. Rangers

(No. 1) [Season series, Rangers 3-1-0] The Capitals' goals this season were preparing for the playoffs and improved defence.

(No. 8) Goalie Henrik Lundqvist led the league with 11 shutouts and offers New York a chance to upset.

Flyers vs. Sabres

(No. 2) [Season series, Flyers 2-1-1] There's uncertainty in goal in Philly. Sergei Bobrovsky will start the series as the No. 1 man but could be replaced if he stumbles.

(No. 7) Buffalo has been scorching hot since the all-star break. Ryan Miller is back after missing time with an upper-body injury.

Bruins vs. Canadiens

(No. 3) [Season series, Canadiens 4-2-0] Boston's Tim Thomas is the favourite for the Vezina Trophy after setting an NHL record with a .938 save percentage.

(No. 6) Montreal's Carey Price tied for the league lead with 38 wins. The Habs will need a huge playoff from him to go far.

Pens vs. Lightning

(No. 4) [Season series tied 2-2-0] The Penguins managed to hang tough despite playing without Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin for almost half a season.

(No. 5) Tampa returns to the post-season after missing the last three years and should have the edge offensively with Pittsburgh missing its two stars.

Western Conference

Canucks vs. Hawks

(No. 1) [Season series, Canucks, 2-1-1] Nothing short of a Stanley Cup will do for the Canucks, who had the NHL's best record.

(No. 8) Chicago beat Vancouver in playoffs the last two years but is an underdog this time around.

Sharks vs. Kings

(No. 2) [Season series, Sharks 3-1-2] Goalie Antti Niemi will be looking to win the Stanley Cup for the second time in as many years.

(No. 7) Los Angeles enters the series without leading scorer Anze Kopitar, but is hoping to get Justin Williams back from a dislocated shoulder.

Wings vs. Coyotes

(No. 3) [Season series, Coyotes 2-0-2] Detroit stumbled down the stretch and Henrik Zetterberg will be out of the lineup for at least the start of the series.

(No. 6) The Coyotes put together another solid year despite only having one player (Shane Doan) reach 20 goals.

Ducks vs. Predators

(No. 4) [Season series, Predators, 3-1-0] The Ducks roared into the playoffs in large part due to Corey Perry, who scored 19 goals in the final 16 games.

(No. 5) Nashville is hoping to advance past the first round for the first time in franchise history. Goalie Pekka Rinne has been the team's top performer with a .930 save percentage and 2.12 goals-against average. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Engine

Returning for 2011 is the base 173-horsepower 2.4-litre four-cylinder engine, although its redesigned engine mounts are claimed to lessen the amount of noise and vibration that made life unpleasant for many Sebring owners who selected this engine.

Newly optional is a 283-horsepower 3.6-litre V6 that replaces the previous six-cylinder offerings.

Facelift

Physically, the 200 still resembles the Sebring of old, but with cleaned-up front-end styling, including a new hood, fenders, grille and projector-style headlights that give the car a classier appearance.

The 200 now closely connects with the full-size Chrysler 300 that has undergone a similar facelift. At the opposite end, a new trunk lid, fenders, bumper and tail lamps also play a part in the Sebring-to-200 transformation.

Interior

Even more radical surgery has been performed on the car's interior. The overtly plastic instrument panel has been restyled and covered in richer-looking soft-touch material and the seats and seat coverings have been upgraded for much-needed comfort and eye appeal.

Topping it off is a new steering wheel with integrated controls for the audio and communications systems.

▶ The nose of the 200 falls in line with the remade Chrysler 300. A better suspension and heavily upgraded interior, along with a new V6 engine, highlight the major improvements.

More than just a name change

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

Chrysler's wave of new and updated models has been nothing short of spectacular.

And among the cars requiring urgent attention was the automaker's Sebring sedan and convertible, now referred to as the 200 series.

In the mid-size class, the Sebring was the wallflower of the group.

Not especially popular — and outclassed by its peers — the car had become all but shunned by the vast majority of buyers who preferred to dance with the Toyota Camry, Honda Accord, Ford Fusion and Chevrolet Malibu, to name just a few of the alternatives.

Chrysler's new Fiat-controlled management group will replace the 200 with an entirely new car in a few years, but for now a new name, fresh sheetmetal and a major engine upgrade will have to suffice.

Are the changes enough to erase any negative thoughts about the previous Sebring? Probably not entirely, but considering the short lead time to develop a stop-gap solution, Chrysler's design and engineering teams have managed to perform a minor miracle.

Viewed in its entirety, the 200 series represents a valiant attempt by Chrysler to get back in the mid-size game and be taken seriously as a category contender.

▶ A look at the 200 convertible.

▶ The new interior is far ahead of old car in terms of comfort and a general feeling of quality. Since this can make or break a sale, Chrysler was wise to invest here.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Let those who want to take away your right to speak for yourself know that you will fight them.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Let fear get the better of you, and you'll will miss out on fun.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 If you make a decision on emotion alone, you will most likely regret it by the end of the week.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Others say what you are planning is foolish and doomed to fail. Will that stop you? Nope.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Changes on the work front may be unsettling, but they will work in your favour.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Travel plans are well starred. If you feel the urge to get away for a while, just do it.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 A few encouraging words could have a loved one smiling.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. A partnership issue will be resolved in your favour very soon. SALLY BROMPTON
